WILL DISAPPEARS. Court Allows Testimony As to Its Contents.

The will of Francis Bothelo, filed for probate last June, has disappeared from the files of the Circuit Court, and after a general search for it, Judge Robinson this morning allowed testimony as to its contents, and the estate will be distributed according to its provisions. The will practically disinherited a son and daughter of the deceased, in favor of another son and daughter, who are minors.

Bothelo provided in his last testament that a "full and complete band" should attend his funeral, and he left the sum of $200 to Bishop Guistau, or his successors in office, for which they were to "conduct spiritual services for the benefit and rest" of his soul. G. F. Henshall was called as a witness this morning to testify to having read the will and these provisions, and the estate will now be distributed. The provision as to having a full and complete band at the funeral was not carried out, but the others will be as far as the funds go. Bothelo left $500 each to his minor son and daughter.

BOGOTA SOAKED AGAIN. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—The troubles of the Colombian gunboat Bogota have not yet ended, and it would seem that her expenses are to have no end. The latest item charged against her is a tax of $1,000 on a duplicate shaft that has been sent down from Vancouver to replace the cracked one that brought her down the coast from Seattle. Collector Stratton will see to it that this is paid before this important piece of the vessel's complement is delivered. The steamer is still at the Risdon Iron Works undergoing repairs and there is no telling when she will be ready for sea.
